PRICE ONE CENT.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JANUARY 27, 1894.

PRICE ONE CENT.

The Most Extraordinary Woman in America = A Remarkable Story of Absorbing Interest, Which will Reveal the True = Sunday World MORROW

BISMARCK'S

Germany's Grand Old Man Again the Friend of the Nation's Ruler.

SIGNIFICANT RECONCILIATION.

The Making-Up Puts a New Ring Into Cheers for the Young Kaiser.

World Shocked by the First News of the Iron Chancellor's Dismissal.

lowed the newspapers to print th estarthad dismissed the wise old statesman; that Blamarck was Germany no more, but only an old gentleman who lived in retirement and smoked a pipe and was interested in the culture of turnips; dropped the pilot that had carried her safely through so many black storms, and was henceforth to be guided past the dangerous coasts that everywhere surrounded her by the hand of a youth whose antics already had caused uneasiness even when the strong hand of the veteran was at the wheel.

The world would not believe it at first, and no wonder. The story that Bismarck was to resign, or would resign, had been spread abroad again and again. but he was always there at his post just the same. He had, indeed, threatened to resign before. It was the trump card which he had played more than once before and which always had brought the royal views of questions of state in harmony with his own.

ALL THE WORLD AMAZED. fact was made public the world would mighty German giant had fallen-toppled they would glorify it. over and put away in the dusty lumber Bismarck was indeed gone;

As against Frederick the Good, the issue of Ministerial responsibility.

his authority direct from heaven, was ereign himself. lord paramount over all. This was the

for the breath fairly we out at his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out at his first of the German States, and then that for the breath fairly we out at his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out at his first of the German States, and then that for the breath fairly we out at his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out at his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out at his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out at his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out his the fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out his the fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out his the fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that fairly we out his the fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that the fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that the fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that the fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that the fairly we out his first of the German States, and then that the fairly we out he fairly in the fairly we out he fairly in the fairly we fairly in the fairly much the system of that the fairly we had been the state of the fairly much the system of the fairly much the system of the fairly we say and the fairly much the system of the fairly much the system of the fairly much the system. The Emperor state of the fairly much the system of the fairly much the syste at this present day. The ideas of Parlamentary government to which the gentle Frederick had leaned, and the general broad telerance of his views were abhorrent to Eismarck, and he had o difficulty in making them equally intolerant to his young pupil, the future

THE KING WILLS IT.

This idea of blind subservience to the royal will was faithfully expressed in the columns of the conservative Corre-spondenz and the Norddeutsche Allegemeine Gazette at the time of the Emperor's final rupture with the Chancellor. The same article appeared simultaneously in both newspapers, and bore evidence of an inspiration straight from the throne.

"It is allowed us to criticise and suggest," write the dutiful editors, "but the final decision rests with the powers that be. Revolutionary countries may do away with such regular system of government. It has been attempted and even found successful, but in Germany private interferences, contrary to the will of the Emperor, either in her home or her foreign policy, will never be tolerated. Finally, when in attempting such interference, doubt is cast upon the good intentions and the peaceable policy of the Government, then not only is the monarchial principle outraged, but a grave offense against patriotism is committed. A conservative should always hesitate to express opinions which might have the effect of creating distrust between the people and their ruler."

With such Bismarckian ideas deeply grounded in his mind; with his head filled with half-digested schemes startling and theatrical things to be STORY OF THE FALLING-OUT. starting and theatrical things to be done; with a vanity and concell beyond measure, except when put by the side of his obstinacy and arrogance, it was inevitable that he and his master, the Iron Chancellor, soon should clash. Probably his vanity alone, even had Bismarck been more yielding, would have forced a rupture. He was anxious to show the world that a new and brilliant intellectual force had appeared upon the will be four years on the 18th of horizon of European statecraft. next March since the Berlin press cen-sors removed their injunction and alwhen he was at the helm; that if Gerling news that the weak young Emperor many must have a Bismarck, he, Kaiser Wilhelm the Second, would be that Bismarck.

BISMARCK'S IRON WILL. But he was not forced to fall back upon sheer arbitrary authority to bring about the end of the great Chancellor's departure from power. He found in the iron will of the old veteran all the opposition that he desired. The secret history of all the preliminary conflicts which led up to the final crash never has been and perhaps never will be written. The accounts even of the final rupture itself are confused and conflicting. Certain points and several details of the differences between the sovereign and the Prime Minister stand out with sufficient clearness, and several of these last were almost petty in character. To begin with, over and above all things there stands out the one primary fact, that Bismarck was sacrificed to the schemes of ambition, to his passion for personal rule, to his longing for glory, to his sublime faith in his own all-suffic For fully twenty-four hours after the ing power of insuring the good of the country, which, for good or ill he had not have it so; there must be some mistake; the resignation would be with- handed as absolute and sole dictator of drawn; the young Emperor would re- its destinies, taking no advice save what cede, could not be so mad as to let go came from the all-sufficient fountain of the man who towered like a great his own supernatural genius. The Eu-Colossus over all Europe, who had cre- ropean world did not know he had these ated and welded into a great homogeneous mass the very mighty Empire as the colossal figure of Bismarck which the youth himself ruled. Kaiser Withelm II. had shown evidences of him. Therefore the obtruding presence having within him many eccentric possibilities, but surely he could not have clear, unobstructed view of the celestia taken leave of his senses so far as that! Vision. It might dazzle them at first, ruled the Empire and the Emperor him- wish that my Ministers present them- and waited for a sign from the Emperor in every respect that is of real weight will towards men; with his sentimental-ism and his dreams of things for the rule had held in the reign of William off Prince Bismarck's hands, with not continued the Emperor, still in the same cuss things with him. But it is not only benefit of mankind—as against this mild benefit of mankind—as against this mild brief lease of power held by King Fred- Bismarcks not created more than once and kindly tempered ruler, the young and impetuous William, who became the Good, and naturally was con- or twice in a century? Crown Prince when venerable William tinued by Prince Bismarck and his But the Emperor did not want a Bis-sider useful carried our thoroughly."

But the new master proposed to change vorite with the great Chancellor.

HIS TUTOR'S FATE.

and all its departments there must be no intermediary; all streams of State his ideas of absolutism, which after, information must flow directly in the power, the God-given ruler of men, with but were to report directly to the soy- The man at whose frown but a day be-flavor of exception in the matter of Chancellor it is easy to see, Prince their fortunes and put a mighty Empire Dismarckian idea modified by a mild ating a blow at the dignity of the great Sopreme dictatorship when it came to Bi-marck had long been the actual head in their hands, was turned off by the my services are not fortunate enough thinself. It was Bismarck and ruler of all the Ministers. He had one youthful Hohenzoliner who long to please Your Majesty, and that seeme the property of the humblest."

Think I can perceive, he said, 'that his estate at Priedrichruhe. The King hear every word to please Your Majesty, and that seeme to please Your Majesty, and that seeme thoughts exist of acting rid of me."

So the crowds ke man as he came to and from the royal who taught the young Emperor conthe Emperor and the solution of the solution such's alle ed ill-treatment of his mother an ancient custom. It dated back even matic character, arch's alle ed ill-treatment of his mother an ancient custom. It dated back even made customs it dated back even made customs it dated back even made customs in the official North German to hand Your Majesty my restrict the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was one of the introductory events of his before Prince Bismarch's time. It was not befor appearance in the role of sovereign. Be- under this system that Prussis become to this version, about 8 o'clock in the ignation, I would only like to beg Your fore the breath fairly wes out of his first of the German States, and then that morning, while Prince Bismarck was Majesty to let me remain in office and

PRINCE BISMARCK.

But it was true nevertheless. The but their eyes would get used to it and self became a simple head of department. There was but one thing for "Your ... esty." answered Bismarck, This was the one overshadowing in- him to do and that was to resign, and "by virtue of the law I alone am author- Emperor said, still speaking excitedly: chambers by an erratic young man's fluence which led to Bismarck's retire- very joyfully, although with some slight ized and charged to make direct reports chambers by an erratic young man's more which red to bismarks of the conceil and ment; all the rest were mere incidents, delay, the Emperor accepted his resignator whim, a whim born of a conceil and ment; all the rest were mere incidents, delay, the Emperor accepted his resignator which is absolutely your mysterious negotiations with Dr. "You in America cannot understand your mysterious negotiations with Dr. "You in America cannot understand mere mean; to an end that already had thon. But even this delay was not from necessary if the proceedings of the Gov. Windthorst. I know you receive him in been resolved upon. As to the particu- any sentimental regard for the venerable ernment are to have a firm and united your house, and I forbid these meet-Germany no longer thundered her edicts lar point on which the Emperor raised Chancellor who had made the Empire character. If, within the last few ings." through the voice of the mighty Chan- the issue, as to one of the principal a fact and the Emperor's sovereignty a weks, some Ministers have got into the This last piece of Imperial insolence cellor, who never opened his mouth to points, at least, there is no reason to possibility. There is a tradition that the way of making reports to Your Majesty, thoroughly aroused the slumbering lion, back with all its old intensity in the speak but all Europe held its breath and entertain any doubt. The Emperor Chancellorship never can be vacant, and it is in opposition to the law which gives "I know quite weil," thundered Bis. great statesman's breast, and he is quite raised with the Chancellor the direct it was not just the easiest thing in the this right alone to the Chancellor of marck, "that for some time back I have world for the young man to lay his Your Majesty. But as soon as Your been surrounded by spies and talebearers the hand which so recently dealt him As against Frederick the Good, the issue of Ministerial responsibility. World for the young man to lay his Your Majesty. But as soon as Your been surrounded by spies and talebearers the hand which so respect to the hand on just the right person to fill the Majesty orders me I will yield to your who watch every step I take. It is true, so unjustified a blow. It is true, and again I say it is true that I have HOW BERLIN to act as secretary to a callox youth.

EXIT BISMARCK.

But the delay was not very long. Von

Crown Prince when venerable William times by Prince Bismarck and his subordinate Ministers when the new when Frederick's sickly reign of a few moster ascended the throne.

NEW MASTER, NEW METHODS.

NEW METHOD METHODS.

NEW METHOD METH wanted was a clerk, since the great my years of experience tell me that spoke in a loud voice and while laboring find its voice, and when it had found its just the contrary. Prince Rismarck was in possession of letters of which had its hold on him when he came to the throne, was always a prime fa but the new master proposed to change wanted was a cierk, since the great of the state colossus of statements the Emperor which would damage him and all list departments there must be constant to a callex voice, and when it had found its voice and while had its voice, and when it had found its voice and while had its voice, and when it had found its voice and while had its voice, and when it had found its voice and while had declined some of them need certain modifications under great excitement, the Emperor which would damage him all its departments there must be constant to a callex voice.

The alignment is not in the contrary. The alignment is not in the contrary to a callex voice it was a dangerous matter to use aghast. The alignment is not in the discussion of the great excitement. The discussion of the great excitement was the contrary.

The alignment is not in the contrary to a callex voice and when it had found its voice, and when it had found its voice and while the contrary.

The alignment is not in the contrary to a callex voice it was a dangerous matter to use aghast. The alignment is not in the contrary to a callex voice it was a dangerous matter to use aghast. The alignment is not in the contrary to a callex voice it was a dangerous matter to use aghast. The contrary to a callex voice it was a dangerous matter to use aghast.

to Your Majesty." His ideas of absolutism, which afterwards turned and rent Bismarck, Bismarck himself had carefully instilled Ministers were no longer to report to marck himself had carefully instilled with the great Chancellor was accepted. Into him. The Kalser, the one-man Prince Bismarck in the first Instance, of the great Chancellor was accepted, to be carried out just as I give them." made,

In that case there is nothing for me-to withdraw

After a few unpleasant moments the "There is still a word to be said about speaking to an American:

After these words, which Edsmarck sunned with the portentous news to the Mea of resignation. The fact was who had so shabbily requited his long services and his grand genius. As far back as 1846 Rismarck bad said, in

"You in America cannot understand towards my sovereign."

Doubtless at this moment of the rec onciliation this same loyalty has come ready to forget and forgive and to kiss

HOW BERLIN TOOK IT The Berlin that is gay with bunting and wild with enthusiasm over the Chancellor's return and the reconciliation with the Emperor received the news of his descent from power with an apon the surface. At first the city was too happy inference that the interview had was taking his leave of the Berliners might ensue to the Emperor. He begged of his activity, been a pleasant one, and that perhaps and going to the retirement of his beauther the intervents so as to prevent discontinuous to the enterprise of the leave of the literature of the leave of the intervents so as to prevent discontinuous to the enterprise of the leave of the thein," with his keen eye on the inpiloisy until his sovereign with gracious inerests of his beloved Germany, and his keener wite ready and alert to buffle her bittinguing enemies

THE EMPRESS'S REVENCE.

Commenting upon this, the Berlin conconciliation which the Chancellor his the Covernment for more than two years, the

his sovereign power, and being his own Bismarck, with his path to glory illuminated by the dazzling radiance of his own surprising intellectual lights.
It was about this time that he made his famous "go ahead, full steam" speech, and he went ahead full steam, nations while wielding the scentre of filling Europe with the resonant clang of his eratory and telling the world his nearness to heaven as a ruler of men. He was Emperor in earnest now with no great overshadowing Hismarck to dim the lustre of his glory. And everywhere he was exploiting the divine right of kings doctrine, which had been inculcated into nim so sealously by his tutor in statesmanship, Bismarck, and which had proved so disastrous to Bismarck himself and incidentally so detrimental to Germany in its result of banishing the firm hand and wise, calm and allgrasping head of Bismarck from the direction of the ship of state. At Konigsberg, in May, 1890, only two months after he had sent Bismarck into retirement, the young Emperor gave beaven and the ruler thereof, a favoration with himself in the following mod-

This Kingship by the grace of God. expresses the fact that we, Hohenzollerns, accept our mission only from heaven, and are responsible to heaven for the discharge of our duties." Again, a little later on, he said to his

"I see in the people of the land which has descended upon me a talent intrusted to me by God, which, as the Bible whistle. I feel it to be my duty to express my opinion to the many who wish to hear it, both at home and abroad. "I see in the people of the land which I mean, with all my strength, to trade and not to hold my peace. An old o with my talent that I hope to add proverb has it that when God places nflicting upon him.

A CURIOUS STORY. The great event of Bismarck's depoor less apochryphal, for the reason that, go, in the first place, it is so utterly forign to the Iron Chancellor's character, so far as his character is understood, and that in the second place, it emanated from a Paris correspondent, or, at all events, first got into English print in which he is, no matter how large it through a letter sent from Paris. This may be. I think he is the victim of curletter, however, was from the regular correspondent of the London Standard, and the story has had many believers. That it was pleasant to English ears to enjoy the advantages gained in 1870. That it was pleasant to build as it in is easy enough to understand, as it in is easy enough to understand, as it in if one stone is moved all the other veives the triumph of the Emperor's stones of the edifice will fall. This young English mother over her old and bitter Emperor is a terrible shaker of column enemy, the Chancellor. The story is to the effect that when Emperor really was in earnest in wishing his resignation, he was so perturbed that he lost his self-possession. Two hours after the stormy interview behours after the stormy interview timation to Bismarck that if he did not tween the Emperor and Bismarck, when stop his press utterances the result Bismarck had said that he would resign would be serious. Bismarck's answer and the Emperor had made a sign of assent to the proposition, the Emperor Herr Von Bucher "to assist in arrangwas waiting in his palace for the resigthat at last he sent an aide-de-camp to it in the discussion of the great event, was that he had been sent for the Chan- if published. These were written during shall have the honor of submitting them of his head, and the breach between the The spice and cavesdroppers, of whom cellor's written resignation. Prince Bisto Your Majesty."

The Chancellor greeted the aide very affably convinced that the Emperor

Emperor and his faithful Chancellor. Bismarck complained so bitterly to the Emperor, testily. "I wish my orders has been healed, was thus be corrected out tout a few tout and the control of the Chancellor alone.

Emperor and his faithful Chancellor. Bismarck complained so bitterly to the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting an ardent desire to succeed the march was very uneasy; made an excuse manifesting and artent was very uneasy; made an excuse manif "Do not come to Berlin now," wrote morning the aide-de-camp reappeared, the time being The strength of the strength o some warmth.

"I think I can perceive," he said, "that his estate at Friedrichruhe. The Emperor continues to he was bound to pay a visit. Prince was used without his consent. In Govhis estate at Friedrichruhe. The King hear every word that is uttered, even Historick accordingly point have threat." The Prince's attacks on which was to no less a person than the other threat."

haps, draw nearer to me, but it wil

At this the Chancellor sorrowfully tired, and returnig home found the aide de-camp there, to whom he handed resignation, which the Emperor kept for several days before formally accepting it. Those who had counted on the tame submission of the ex-Chancellor reck-koned without their host. He had hardly left the capital when he began campaign of criticism and disclosi that soon made him a thorn in the side of the young Emperor. On June 22, 1890, Bismarck received a deputation repre-senting 30,000 citizens of Berlin, and, addressing them, said;

"Now I have no responsibility, and so I can freely have my say. I feel pret-ty much like Prince Metternich. He-said that he had descended from the stage to the pit, and that is just now the position I am also in. There are many people who will not grant me this, but every one who has bought a ticket for a pit seat is surely entitled to criticise. Only he must exercise his right decently and not with a shrill so with my talent that I hope to add many to it. Those who help me be they heartily welcome; those who oppose me I will dash in pleces. All existing parties are old rubbish. I only know two parties; one for me and the other against me."

In the mean time the man who had made this tremendous Me all he was, and had built his Empire for him, was banished to his Friedrichsruhe turnippatch with his life varied by insulting acts and communications which the young cub never lost an opportunity of inflicting upon him.

proverb has R that when God places any one in office he also deprives him of his intellect.

Let me tell you, however, that I am just exactly the same man I was three months ago, and lay claim to the same amount of intelligence as I then possessed. Nor will I yield to dictation, though I should have to stand alone. It is the duty of a man like me to be free with his opinion, even in the highest quarters, and these are just the very quarters, and these are just the very quarters where such a duty becomes imperative. A good minister ought not to regard the frowns of the monarch to regard the frowns of the monarch whom he serves, but out with his opin-ion to him, frank and free. In the sition from power should not be passed event of an adverse decision he may over without relating one episode, more then thoose whether he will yield or

BISMARCK TALKS FREELY. "I pity this young man," said he. "He is like a young bound that barks at everybody, that smells everything, that touches everything, and that ends by causing complete disorder in the room rent history, which he might have curbed by a reign of tranquillity in the beaten track and by allowing Germany He is fond of history. He wishes to live The story is to the effect that when in history, but he does not know nor un-Bismarck began to perceive that the derstand the spirit of the great laws of centuries."

During June, 1890, it was believed in Berlin that the Emperor had sent an intimation to Bismarck that if he did not to this was to call to Friedrichsruhe ing the Prince's papers." chinger was there at the same time, engaged in getting together material for a wait on Bismarck and bring the docu-biography which should be also made the vehicle for Bismarck's confiden Instead of ceasing his activity it looked as if the Prince was getting ready for a campaign on a large scale. Journalists continued to visit him. They were cordially received, entertained for days at time and informed of much that had been hitherto a secret. Finally, in February, 1891, it was rumored that he would be prosecuted. Ar the same time he sent four large boxes of papers to England, as if to get them safely out of Germany in the event of his premises being searched. On Feb. 14 an extraordinary session of the Royal State Council was held at Berlin, and in the midst of its deliberations the Emperor suddenly appeared and joined in he discussion. It soon leaked out that the talk was about the threatening attiude assumed by Bismarck and its possible effect on the foreign relations of the Empire. The Emperor expressed his condemnation of Bismarck in the sever-

BISMARCK THREATENED EX-

POSURE. Five days later it was asserted that

So the crowds kept their own counsel. Empress Frederick, the young Empress the Government when not open were her to intervene so as to prevent dis- At last William issued a warning. It